35 years of service

- vertical construction
- project management
- historic repositioning/renovation/ adaptive re-use
- FF&E purchasing and installation

Gary Coffman has lead responsibility for Woodbine's vertical construction projects. He supervises project management professionals assigned to the project and leads the selection of architectural design, interior design, engineering, construction, FF&E purchasing and installation firms for the projects. His group also provides project budgeting, project scheduling and support for the asset management team. He joined Woodbine in 1974 and has been involved in all of Woodbine's vertical construction projects.

Before joining Woodbine, Mr. Coffman oversaw construction of The Westin Crown Center Hotel in Kansas City, Missouri; an aircraft engine testing facility; and a missile packaging building. While a structures engineer at General Dynamics, he specialized in aircraft structural design and modification.
